The AEAAC works to:

- Increase awareness of the issue of elder abuse
- Provide opportunities for greater collaboration and information sharing across Alberta
- Enhance knowledge and build capacity among practitioners in the field of elder abuse
- Collaborate to respond to elder abuse in communities across Alberta

The AEAAC's belief is that no one organization has a broad enough scope to address the complex issue of elder abuse in its entirety. This is why the AEAAC is a council of Albertans, with each individual building on its own unique strengths for a common purpose. A truly effective community response involves many stakeholders working in collaboration.

AEAAC Benefits of Membership

The Alberta Elder Abuse Awareness Council is a province-wide council of professionals dedicated to the prevention of elder abuse by increasing community awareness, developing resources and promoting the well-being of older adults.

The AEAAC believes:

- Every senior is a valued member of society and has a right to live free of abuse.
- Elder abuse is intolerable and unacceptable.
- Increased awareness is key to addressing elder abuse.
- Front-line professionals and caregivers need to be given adequate tools to address elder abuse.

Our Purpose - All Albertans understand elder abuse and are aware of and have access to resources to address it.

Our Vision - Alberta's older adults are valued and live free from abuse.

Our Mission - We are a council of Albertans dedicated to increasing awareness and supporting a community response to elder abuse.

Have a Voice

As a member, you will have the opportunity to contribute to the work of the Council, be part of a collective voice, and have input on developing common messaging and resources to address elder abuse.

Networking

Members have the opportunity to connect with other service providers through interest groups, subcommittees, and member networking events.

Members Only Benefits

Members receive a website log-in to access minutes, agendas, members only discounts, and other great resources.

Visibility

Members are listed on the "members" section of the website. This includes a write up of their organization that is search-able by website users.

Learning

Members are notified about training opportunities first. Members have access to promote local training on a calendar of events. Members are updated with quarterly reports from the AEAAC.
